$48,767,573.98 Saved In Calif. School System

Taking up the cudgel in defense of the school board trustee, who bears the brunt of the current demand for public economy yet was the first to adapt his program to present conditions, Joseph E. Hancock, county superintendent of schools, calls attention to an "Educational Week" bulletin showing the total reduction in California school district budgets for the present school year amounts to $48,767,573.98.

The bulletin is issued by Vierling Kersey, state superintendent of public instruction ,and the figures are those of the division of research and statistics of the state department of education.

"The study is a comparison of total school district receipts for the year 1931-32 with the total amounts budgeted to be received by school districts in 1932-33," the bulletin states. "The comparison shows that the total reduction in school district budgets for the present school year amounts to $48,767,573.98, or a cut of 27.6 per cent from the receipts of the previous year."

High school and elementary school districts of Santa Clara county contributed a substantial proportion to the cut, Hancock points out. Budgets on which they are operating for the current year, according to a report prepared recently in his office, are $339,719.27 les sthan their disbursments for the preceding year.

"The state survey shows," says Hancock, "that in many instances cuts have been so drastic that impoverished educational programs are the result. In order to save money, huge classes are being maintained, teachers have been assigned unusually heavy loads, school buildings have been allowed to lapse into disrepair, rude shelters have been thrown up to avoid the expense of adequate housing for increased enrollments; supplies and equipment have been curtailed below the necessary minimum.

"School boards of Santa Clara county should not be expected to reduce their schools to this plight. They have already evinced a disposition to effect the utmost economy consistent with educational rights children should not be denied. They should not be forced, through the criticism of those not familiar with economies already effected, to jeopardize what in times like these, as well as in good times, is the community's most valuable single asset—its school."

Resigns as President

Ira Abbott, principal of the local grammar school, who has for a number of years been president of the Santa Clara County Elementary Principals' association, retired from the position and handed the gavel over to Kenneth Slater of Mt. View at a meeting held last Thursday night in San Jose.

In the Mountains

Guests of Arthur McCarty at the A. V. McCarty ranch in the Little Llagas canyon over the week-end were Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Fletcher, Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Whitmore, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Knappen, and Miss Idell Fulton.

Mrs. H. C. Smith Re-elected Pres. Woman's Club

Another fiscal year of the Country Woman's club was brought to a close with the end of April and Monday the annual meeting of the club was held.

Interesting reports from the officers and chairmen of the various committees were presented. These showed that the meetings have been well attended and splendid programs presented.

Money had been given to the librarian, Mrs. Voge, with which to add books to Campbell's library, which were not available from the county. Mrs. Voge's report on the library was of tremendous interest and is convincing evidence of the value of our library, which is maintained by the subscriptions to the Campbell Library association made through the Community chest, and also through the efforts of the Country Woman's club.

The report follows:

" This has been a year in the history of the Campbell library when one could feel no doubt of the benefit the library conferred upon the community. It has been only too evident that people have thronged the library who had no money to spend upon amusement. Some people have read along vocational lines, but many others have done serious reading without any pecuniary motive. When I first came to the library, about 15 per cent of the books taken out were non-fiction, or in other words, travel boooks, biography, scientific works. This year about22 per cent of the circulation has been non-fiction.

"As has been the case with all other libraries the circulation has been larger this year than ever before. The last two months we have had a circulation of 3,300 volumes a month, a figure never reached before. The circulation for the year May 1, 1932 to May 1, 1933, was 34,964. Thirty-three thousand, one hundred and seventy-eight were county books; 1,768 were books belonging to the Campbell Library association.

"Last fall, with the consent of the club, instead of buying history and scientific books with the club money, 75-cent copies of ranch stories, detective stories, and a few love stories with happy ending were purchased. These some 20 books nearly doubled our Campbell circulation. While it is a great satisfaction to give the newest books on astronomy to those who ask for them, there can be no question that these popular books have added greatly to the happiness of the patrons.

"In February I had the great pleasure of meeting Miss Stella Huntington at a library meeting, and she enquired with the greatest affection about the library and the Woman's cub.

"As I have said before, I so often wish the members of the Country Woman's club could hear the compliments that I have heard paid to the building and the library. I specially prize those coming from strangers. —Lilian Voge."

Directors for the 1933-34 year were elected and at a meeting held by them later they chose the following officers: president, Mrs. Harry C. Smith; vice president, Mrs. Chauncey H. Whitman; secretary, Mrs. Freeman Howes; treasurer, Miss Jessie L. Lewis; director-at-large, Mrs. J. D. Blaine.

Interspersed with business, the members enjoyed two songs, "Home on the Range" and "Coming 'Round the Mountains" which were sung by Rano Bugliosi, Warren Knopf, and Harry Warman, pupils of Mrs. Mabel Keesling, Cambrian school; the reading of the Club Collect in unison and of "A Toast to the Flag" by the president.

Announcements of interest to other women of the community as well as to the club included a garden party to be held May 18 at the home of Mrs. J. C. Ainsley. This pleasant affair is being planned by the County Federation of Women's clubs for the benefit of the student loan fund; and the piano concert to be given at the Fox Mission theater next Sunday in which Miss Bozena Kalas and Miss Katherine Wood, both piano artists of Campbell will participate. Jan Kalas will direct the ensemble of twenty locally prominent pianists.

The program committee for the meeting of May 15 stated that Mrs. Kathryn Gail Morrish of Redwood City, formerly of San Jose and soprano soloist of the Westminister church of that city will present a group of songs.

D. K. Grady Boosts Calif. Prune Pool

The industry movement which growers of prunes in California are now being asked to support has been endorsed by D. K. Grady, secretary, California Dried Fruit association.

Speaking of the campaign of the California Prune Pool and the California Prune and Apricot association, in behalf of the United Prune Growers of California, ending May 16, Grady said;

"California prune growers are today situated in an ideal position. They have established a reputation for quality; they have won their way in the markets of the world. Now they have the machinery through which to promote further that standing which will in the end contribute substantially to bringing back to them the added wealth that is their due through raising a by quality of the levels of price."

Police District Discussed At C. of C. Meet

H. M. Shadle, presided over a meeting of the Campbell Chamber of commerce Tuesday night. A large number of members and otther people of the district turned out to the interesting meeting.

The formation of a police district was thoroughly discussed and plans will be continued as soon as information on the change in a new legislative measure is received. Dr. W. I. Merrill, Guy Farley and Ira Abbot were appointed a committee to investigate. They will draw up a petition and submit it to the board of supervisors.

According to Mr. Shadle, there is a small majority of the people of this community paying for the police protection and the rest are getting the benefit. Measures for correcting this situation will be taken care of in the formation of the new district.

The plan to annex part of supervisorial district No. 5 to district 4 was also discussed. No Plan will be outlined until further information on how to proceed is obtained.

Mr. Abbott pointed out that the contemplated annexation would eventually mean better roads for the necessary school bus travel.

Before the meeting was over, Mr. mentsShadle introduced a resolution demanding that public utilities share the general economy program.

WHEREAS: Economy programs all over the country are being directed against the cost of education, and

Whereas such economy programs are being very detrimental to our educational institutions, such as the University of California, kindred institutions, local schools, etc, and are being carried to a point where the social service programs will be entirely done away with, and

Whereas we find big business, utility groups and kindred organizations behind these drives, using innocent and unsuspecting groups to further their ends, then let it be resolved:

That this chamber of commerce go on record as being opposed to the discrimination and further go on record as being in accord with any movement looking toward the lowering of the cost of government in the state, and to the equalization of utility tax rates and the cutting of salaries in these same utilities to a level consistent with good business and in proportion to cuts demanded from educational institutions, so that utility rates may be brought to a point where farmers and wage earners and small business houses are able to pay without suffering.

Further let it be resolved that this resolution be spread in the minutes of this chamber, and also be sent to our representatives in the legisalture.

Pundita's Guest Day Is Pleasant Affair Wednesday

One of the pleasant social events of the spring was the guest day meeting of the Pundita Circle held last Wednesday in the Community hall.

The guests were welcomed by Mrs. D. Harold Cramer, president of the circle, who then announced as the first number of their entertainment two violin solos "Mazurka" and "Meditation" from the opera "Thais," played by Hugh Cramer, with Miss Bozena Kalas at the piano.

Miss Kalas also played for the group charming solos sung by her sister, Miss Helen Kalas.

Miss Anne Schulte gave two of her delightful readings, "The Announcement Dinner," (Juliet Wilbur Tompkins), and "New Year's Eve" (Robert Service), and Christopher Morley's one act comedy, "Thursday Eve" was read by a group of ladies, Mrs. Stanley Smith represented Mr. Gordon Johns, Jr.; Mrs. George Smith, Jr., Laura, his wife; Mrs. Emma Dalvit, Laura's mother, Mrs. Sheffield; Miss Helah Laird, Mrs. Johns, Sr.; and Miss Schulte read the stage directions.

The hostesses for the day were the Mesdames Emma S. Dalvit, Laura S. Allen and A. M. Standish. Assisted by the officers of the club and the Misses Sallie Davidson, Betty Mumma, and Frances Smith, daughters of club members, they served refreshments during the visiting hour following the program.

Dainty corsages of baby roses with lupin and other pastel flowers were presented to each lady.

The abundance of lovely roses with which the room was decorated were the product of the gardens of the members, most of whom are blessed with country homes.

Current Comment

In last week's issue of Liberty magazine Capt. Myron B. Goldsmith paints a dreary picture of the defense mechanism of the Pacific coast in his article, "Can Our West Coast Be Invaded?"

Captain Goldsmith gives a detailed and comprehensive account of how a war-like and land-hungry nation like Japan could invade, sieze, and possibly hold all that part of the United States west of the Rocky mountains, which is indeed a goodly piece of territory.

The fortifications along the coast are, according to the Captain, who should know, inadequate not only in location, but in concealment, number and range of guns, and in personnel. There are not enough artillerymen on the Pacific coast to man the old-fashioned guns which pass for our coast defense. The guns themselves are badly outranged, being capable of a mere 18,000 yards as against the 35,000 yards of the 16-inch guns carried on modern battleships. Two railway guns of the 14-inch variety stand unguarded and subject to sabotage near San Pedro. No rail facilities have been provided to take them to strategic points in case of emergency.

The 1895 12-inch guns of our forts are seldom if every fired because the civilian population objects to the accompanying noise.

In the Pacific, our only worthwhile naval base is in the Hawaiian Islands where 140,000 Japanese make a heavy percentage of the total population. In the states of California, Oregon, and Washington there are believed to be 90,000 male Japanese, some of whom would undoubtedly be loyal to the Land of the Rising Sun in the event of hostilities. Japanese have been reported taking pictures of our fortifications ,of drilling in secluded halls, and taking soundings along the coast—with no move made to halt them.

A tremendous force of men and many anti-aircraft guns would be required to beat off an aerial attack launched from Japanese airplane carriers. The men and guns are not available.

The one ray of light, says the Captains ,is the number of flying fields and machines on the coast, together with a group of pilots who are superior to those of the Japanese.

Of course, the United States and Japan are at present enjoying friendly relations. But how long are they going to last? Japan is imbued with the spirit of war; she feels the need of branching out, and she has thumbed her nose at the world. She is ready to fight, and we are not. Her people like this country. What more is needed to start the guns of war? Well, the death of Japan's minister to Washington would be excuse enough, and could probably be arranged by the Fatherland with little difficulty.

We of the United States, on the other hand, have had, so to speak, a "bellyfull" of war. We have ample territory for our needs, and we desire nothing so much as to be left alone in order that we may work out a system whereby we can attain some measure of economic stability.

To avoid war is an aim dear to the hearts of all but the most extreme militarists—and manufacturers of war supplies—and the way to do that is to be prepared for trouble. Quarrelsome and greedy nations, knowing that we are prepared to give them "the works" at the first hint of hostility would be pretty apt to leave us alone. Why shouldn't we enjoy true rather than false security. Preparedness is good insurance against war.

Mrs. Don McQueen Hostess To Stitching Club Last Thursday

The Ada Rebekah Stitching club enjoyed a meeting last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Don McQueen. Mrs. Hattie Dunham assisted her daughter as hostess.

After a short business meeting a social hour was observed. In the late afternoon refreshments were served at small tables, decorated in yellow and green. The house was charming in a yellow and green color scheme of crepe paper and flowers.

The next meeting of the club will be held at 11 a. m., May 11, in the I.O.O.F. hall, and will be a no-hostess affair. The purpose of the meeting is to finish a quilt which the members have been working on. Mrs. Archie Brydon, a cting president, requests that all members phone her regarding supplies for the luncheon which is to be furnished by all of the ladies.

KIWANIS NOTES By Heck

"Our Leisure Moments" was very interestingly discussed by Dr. Kapp at Kiwanis luncheon yesterday. Time to think and enjoy our blessings is our first duty to ourselves and humanity. By taking time to visualize and consider the conditions of mankind we are moved to assist in the betterment of ourselves and neighbors. We should be thankful for the opportunity, power and desire to do for our fellow man. Kiwanians are builders. Think that you may build the better.

Dr. Kapp has done considerable thinking and studying along these lines and is well able to pass on some of his philosophy.

Dr. W. R. Morgan was chairman of the day.

Several of the Kiwanians and their wives will attend the divisional meeting at Santa Cruz May 18.

Prof. Sydney Hillyard of Los Gatos will speak on the Douglas Plan Tuesday noon and Nic Hedegard will act as chairman.

THE FARMERS CORNER

By Ralph H. Taylor

Lobbying the lobbyists, an old Spanish custom in California politics, has hit a furious pace during the current session of the state legislature, with both curious and serious results.

Mainly a casual and occasional practice in times past, the business of high-pressuring their fellow-high-pressurists has reached such proportions this year that many of the lobbyists have found it impossible to get time to lobby the lawmakers.

There is more than a touch of "poetic justice," perhaps in, the all too-frequent pictures of harassed lobbyists, seeking to escape from other lobbyists repeating the familiar formula: "You do this for me and I'll do that for you." To the senators and assemblymen, undoubtedly, there is satisfaction in the fact that the lobbyists are getting a dose of their own medicine.

But the serious aspect of the phenomenon is the implication that vote trading, between various interests represented at the legislature as well as between the members of the two houses, has reached a new high in the legislative halls and corridors.

California agriculture, represented through the major farm organizations, has thus far managed to keep free of entagling alliances, refusing to espouse the doctrine of "You scratch may back and I'll scratch yours."

The farm representatives, however, have found it difficult to keep a vigilant eye on the hundreds of bills pending before the legislature which affect agriculture, either favorably or adversly, and at the same time listen to the pleas of lobbyists for other interests.

Vote trades during the present session, have ceased to be semi-secret; on several occasions they have been openly discussed on the floors of the senate and assembly, with the members of one house warning the other that there would be retaliation unless the opposite house indicated a belief in reciprocity.

It is a regrettable fact that vote-swapping has become the accepted thing in instances of hotly-contested measures, with members and some of the lobbyists, or representatives of various industries and groups, candidly trading ballots to achieve their ends.

On the other hand, in defense of the operation of the farm plan of reapportionment—in full effect this session for the first time—it may be stated truthfully that the trading of votes, for the most part, has been mainly within the membership of each house, rather than between houses. There has been exceedingly little trading, to date, as between houses—the danger while opponents of the farm plan or reapportionment professed to see in the plan of giving control of one house to the rural areas and control of the other to the cities.

In fairness to the legislators, it should also be noted that the present legislative session has been fraught with more serious problems than any other within the past two decades. Even the best of legislators is likely to look bad in the record book this year, due to the chaotic conditions of the country and the seeming impossibility of finding an answer to the economic puzzle.

Indicative of the terrific pressure to which legislators have been subjected, more than 200 lobbyists were on hand in acramento when the session opened. At t he present time, with adjournment not far distant, this number has dwindled to approximately 120, or a lobbyist for every member. But with all the abundance of lobbyists, there has been an unusual shortage in entertainment funds. Legislators this year have had fewer free lunches and dinners than in past sessions. But the people's representatives, as the lobbyists style themselves, have made up in conversation what they lacked in entertainment funds.

All in all, the third house is not a bad house, legislators to the contrary notwithstanding. If it has traded votes, it has traded no more than the first and second houses, though perhaps more effectively. And if it has lobbied industriously, it has also been industriously lobbied.

PRUNE GROWERS' SIGN-UP ENDS MAY 16

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
CITY AND COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO

H. S. HERSMAN, being first duly sworn, deposes and says:

I affirm to the best of my knowledge and belief and from records available that approximately 11,000 tons have been lost by the United Prune Growers through its two member organizations, the California Prune and Apricot Growers Association and the California Prune Pool.

I further affirm that tonnage of like amount must be made up before May 16, otherwise the industry organization will be discontinued. There can be and will be no extension of time.

I also affirm that, since March 30, 1933, on which date the sign-up campaign was launched, only 577 tons have been reported to this office and, further, that I have full assurance that no more than this tonnage has been signed.

NOTARY PUBLIC

San Francisco, State of California

Prune growers of California who remain outside of the industry stabilization movement will have to act quickly if they are to save it from failure, it was shown when President Hugh S. Hersman of the United Prune Growers of California today released the affidavit shown above for publication.

He pointed out that growers may sign contracts with either the California Prune Pool or the California Prune and Apricot Growers Association, in support of the industry plan.

The United Prune Growers was officially organized September 2, 1932. Since that time the price of prunes has advanced from a basis of one-half to one cent for 50-60 prunes to more than two cents. The crop has moved under these increased prices so satisfactorily that there will be virtually no carryover from the present crop, according to officers of the United.

"We face a crisis," said Mr. Hersman. "If the industry movement fails now because of lack of support from outside growers, we may expect only an immediate lapse into the demoralization that was ruining the growers during recent years"

FARM BUREAU SUPPORTS PRICE RESTORING PROG.

San Francisco, May 3—President Roosevelt's program of currency revision should more properly be called price restoration rather than inflation according to the California Farm Bureau federation in a statement just issued by Alex Johnson, the executive secretary. According to Johnson, press reports indicate that the proposal is in line with the principle advocated for several years by both the American Farm Bureau federation and the California Farm bureau.

"For several years we have seen the countries with which we trade reduce the value of their money, and have found ourselves in a situation where the price they can afford to pay us for our goods has been reduced to where our level of prices has meant ruin," said Johnson. "Their exports to us have been purchased with dollars, allowing them to break down our tariff protection and deprive American peopl of the opportunity to maintain an American standard of living.

"Now I expect we shall get down from our isolated artificial position, and see a gradual but certain raise in prices and a restoration of reasonable prosperity.

"Under the measure as described in the press there is no need to fear undue inflation with its consequent reaction, but we can step from deflation to reflation. I trust both houses of Congress will speedily approve the plan. It has been considered so fully in Congress that there is no occasion to spend words in further discussion."

Jack Murdock Represents San Jose In Tennis

Jack Murdock, graduate of the Campbell high school in 1928, will this week-end at Sacramento participate in the Far Western conference college tennis championships as a representative of San Jose State. He will play Friday afternoon and Saturday, then go to Davis where he will witness the Far Western conference track and field championships being held at the agricultural college's stadium.

Murdock is playing his second year as a varsity man, and this year is acting captain of the team. He has engaged in matches against some of the leading tennis players on the coast, including those from the University of California, Pomona, Menlo J. C., and others. In 1928, he and Martha Carlson won the mixed doubles championships of the Santa Clara Valley Athletic league and in 1930 he was co-holder of the men's doubles championship of Contra Costa county, and in 1931 co-holder of the mixed doubles championship of that county.

This is the first time that a Campbell alumnus has ever represented San Jose in the conference championships, and he and his doubles partner, Earl Goodell, are conceded an even chance to bring home the title.

Schools competing in the championships at Sacramento are the University of Nevada, College of Pacific, California Aggies, Chico State, Fresno State, and San Jose.

Rustlers Active In State, Says Arthur Hebbron

May 3—The resounding old wild west custom of cattle rustling is back again on a modified scale but with up-to-the-minute improvements, such as speed boats anr motor trucks. And the modern day rustler, while lacking the picturesqueness and the six ply nerve of the hard riding and hard cussing "hoss thief" of the yellow backs, has still been active enough to establish his ow ntrademark. He is known as the "gasoline cowboy."

While there is no idea of reviving the one time popularity of the throw rope and the overhanging limb as means of suppression, the state department of agriculture, which is very much interested in running the rustlers to cover, is serving notice on all and sundry that good, stiff state's prison and county jail sentences are being meted out to the rustling gentry. Exactly 48 rustlers, one of them a woman, have been sent to San Quentin or Folsom or to numerous county jails since Jan. 1, 1932, according to Arthur Hebbron, head of the California State Cattle Protection service, which is part of the state department. Hebbron is alsa vice-president of the International Rodeo association and president of the Salinas rodeo, and is one of the best known livestock authorities in the west .

One striking innovation, unknown in the days when the open range was a "no man's land" and the noose was part of the equipment of every top notch remuda, has been introduced by the latter day rustlers. This innovation might be termed "deep sea rustling." It was tried out with some success on Catalina island by a band from the mainland, twenty miles distant. They worked in the herds near Avalon, a beautiful little island port. They came to grief, however, when a caretaker caught them loading a calf carcass into their speed boat. The caretaker telephoned the mainland, and when the suspected rustlers returned they were met by a reception committee headed by a deputy sheriff. They are now awaiting trial in Los Angeles .

As an indication of how heavily the state and the counties descend on the rustlers, six suspects were taken in Monterey county and all were convicted and sent to San Quentin. Hebbron credits the vigilance of the state and county officers and the stockmen themselves with preventing and particularly enthusiastic revival of rustling at this time.

Unlike the old days, when whole herds were ringed about and driven off in the dead of night by the thieves, the rustling is now confined to dairy calves grazing near the highways, and an occasional yearling out on the open rangs. The outlaw cayuse, which furnished transportation to the story book rustled, has also given way to the small truck, on which the calf is thrown and swiftly driven away. The stress of the times and the threat of hunger is accounting for the mild rustling inflation to some extent, Hebbron said, for virtually all of the stolen cattle are immediately consumed as far as can be learned.

LARGE SILVER SHIPMENT FROM CHINA TO U. S.

When a Frenchman wants money he digs down into the proverbial sack, but a Chinaman presents the bill collector with actual "shoes" of silver. At least, that's the story going the rounds today at the American Trust company following the arrival of a consignment of Chinese silver "shoes" from Shanghai on the President Hoover.

These "shoes" are one of the principal mediums of exchange in China and are lumps of Sycee (fine silver) cast into the fancied shape of a woman's foot. "Sycee" is the term used to indicate that the silver is of a standard degree of purity, and each "shoe" bears the "chop mark" (seal) of a leading Chinese merchant who endorses its purity.

As the currencies of China are so diverse and unstandardized, trade balances are settled in silver on a weight basis. The "shoes" are merely a handy form into which the metal is cast for handling. The shoes have no established value, as they vary considerably in weight. But most of them average between 50 and 55 taels. Even taels vary in different parts of China, but the Haikwan tael, upon which customs duties are computed, is the equivalent of one and one-half Mexican dollars.

According to Peter A. Kinnoch, vice president in charge of the foreign department of the American Trust company, this is probably the first shipment of Sycee shoes ever to arrive in San Francisco from the Orient. He states that silver generally flows the other way, as the United States is one of the principal producing countries, and China one of the largest silver consumers.
